

Methodology: Health Check
Delivering: A quantifiable and strategic review

Organisations arrive at key decision points at different times in their journey. Whether that is considering a start-up or spin off; changing direction; considering a target acquisition; or even divestment. It is at these cross-roads, that reliable and tangible information is at its most valuable. However this may not be something that can be done in-house. For various reasons, there may be difficulties in getting hold of reliable and objective information. Not least because your people may be nervous in expressing their views to internal colleagues.

Comprehensive Executive Decisions Support Pack

“The benefit of Evaluation is that it gives a stand alone objective view of where the business is and gives tangible options on how to make improvements. It is the essential foundation for any change programme, empowering you to define your own path and choices.”

Extensive Primary Research Capability

The benefit of our approach is that it is grounded in a thorough understanding of business needs, together with considerable research capability and experience.

From surveys, to interviews, to secondary data analysis, we can offer a ‘best-in-class’ team to provide relevant, quantifiable and credible information at your finger-tips, quickly and effectively.

What we deliver

What senior leaders need at a time of change is properly sourced and quantifiable data to support their decisions. What we deliver is a comprehensive decisions support pack, based on a bespoke review of your business needs. The approach has served executives time and again, at key points in their decision making process.

“There was a lot of work to do in this stage, gathering data, facilitating workshops, presenting to the Leadership team, but the hard work helped us to develop a coherent plan of action, rather than going off in different directions.” Change Champion in Global Oil & Gas Group
